

OVERVIEW

Hellmuth & Johnson's land use, zoning, and development attorneys routinely advise clients regarding municipal zoning ordinances and land use regulations, assist clients with obtaining governmental approvals and permits, and negotiate agreements related to subdivision and development of real estate. Their experience working with industry professionals and government staff enables them to anticipate issues and requirements and efficiently guide their clients from the preliminary planning stage through project completion.

Our land use, zoning, and development practice is complimented by our related work in the areas of business and corporate law, real estate purchases and sales, leasing, financing, construction law, and homeowner associations.
