OVERVIEW

Lindsey is an associate attorney with Hellmuth & Johnson's litigation group where she focuses on complex civil litigation and consumer class action litigation. Lindsey is adept at understanding an issue from multiple perspectives and taking a calm, collected approach no matter how contentious that issue may be.

Lindsey joined the firm after clerking for the Criminal Presiding Judge of Minnesota's 4th Judicial District. Lindsey clerked jury trials and helped maintain court operations at the Hennepin County Government Center throughout the COVID-19 pandemic and months of civil unrest with a goal in mind: Equal access to justice.

Before law school, Lindsey was a journalist and worked as an assignment editor at Fox 9 – KMSP – you may have caught her on-air on the morning news, or reporting breaking news from the assignment desk during evening broadcasts.
